

Planes, no trains and no automobiles (but more mud!)

Following the success of the kite making last week, we decided to go for some more airborne fun and create some special paper planes. The planes all shared the same design, but were created out of different materials of different sizes. The children discovered that biggest isn't always the best! The mud was still evident, everywhere, but the children also enjoyed a game of 'Drop the Stick' and 'Sardines'. One thing for sure is that Tesco's will need to replenish their stock of washing powder!
